

Descriptive Essay Example About A Person

I became her fan when I came to know her over the years. Everyone admires a person in their life who gives them inspiration and motivation to keep them going. Such a person is usually the one who is very near to you.

I've a person in my life whom I admire the most; my mother. She is the best example of a strong woman who handles the entire responsibilities of a house.

She is the one who wakes up early in the morning. She bakes cookies early morning whose yumminess can be tasted in bed even when I'm asleep through the aroma of it. She makes sure to not make a sound when everyone at home is sleeping. She also makes pancakes for the breakfast that are soft as cotton candies. Then she puts up all the stuff at the dining table and knocks at my door calmly with a beautiful voice of her saying "it's time to wake up my bunny, good morning".

Even if I'm awakened before her knock, I pretend to be asleep just to hear her soft loving voice. She is the master of homey stuff.

Her values and beliefs are the best primary education. Most of our understandings, personality, behavior and attitude etc. depends on how we are brought up by our parents. I would say I'm the luckiest here, because she brought me and integrated in me such values that made me flexible enough to understand and simulate things properly.

The credit of my success always goes to her that is why I always kiss her hands which feels like heavenly soft to me and white as milky.

To conclude, the qualities and beauty of my mother cannot be put in words. She is the person I admire and depend upon the most and is very near and dear to me. I cannot think of a day in my life without her. My success belongs to her. The way she takes care of me and brought me up is nothing but a blessing. What else should a person want when having a mother like mine?
